ACTIVITY IN GALICIA

German Claim Russian Line East of Przemysl Is Broken Down.—
Petrograd Disputes Contentions.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
London, June 15.—Although recent press dispatches have said that the Italians who crossed the lower Isarno
were pushing forward toward Trieste, an official announcement
from Rome today gives no indication of further advance in this direction.
The situation along the Isarno is disputed with reference to minor engagements and the statement that the Austrian losses have been serious.
Elsewhere along the front small Italian victories are claimed. The Italian war office charges the Austrians with encouraging brigandage in the territory occupied by Italy.

Rival Claims in Galicia.
The extent of the new Austro-German victory in Galicia is in doubt.
Although Berlin and Vienna assert
the whole Russian line over a 43
mile front, north and east of Prze-mysl was broken down, it is said officially at Petrograd that the Russians captured on Sunday almost all the advance trenches of Przemysl lost on Saturday. Further south in the region of the Wisla river, successes
for the Teutonic forces are acknowledged.

An announcement from the Turkish war office claims a victory over the Russians in the Transcaucasus.
The Turks, it is said, have resented positions in the direction of Odinear the Russian border.

Reports that the British battleship Audacious had been sunk by a German submarine at the Dardanelles,
were denied today in London.

Attempt to Fire Forest.
Rome, June 14, via Paris, June 15.—
The following official statement of the Italian general staff says:
"There have been no important developments along the Tyrol frontier. The Austrians tried yesterday to set fire to the forest of Mon-
falcone, but our troops drove back
the enemy and extinguished the flames."

London, June 15.—The Lusitania

fitted out as a transport, was one of the remarks made by Sir Edward Carson, attorney general in the new cabinet, in addressing the court this morning at the opening of the inquiry into the sinking of the Lusitania. Public interest in the case was evident by the large number of spectators.

In their note to Germany, the speaker said, "The United States already has officially denied it and the evidence I propose to call will confirm and fully prove the remark of the American government that the Lusitania was not an armed steamer and she never had been fitted out as a transport."

A LIMITED SERVICE
ON ELEVATED LINES
RELIEVES CHICAGO

Not A Car Operated On Surface Roads
—City and State Offer Services
as Arbiters.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Chicago, June 15.—Chicago realized
today the seriousness of its strike of 14,000 street car employees.

Not a wheel was to be turned on the 105 miles of surface lines today,
but officials of the elevated line
planned to operate trains throughout the daylight hours. All were guarded with squads of detectives.

Elevated trains of the northern and southern divisions started out at nine o'clock yesterday, but there were few passengers on board. It was stated an attempt to maintain a fifteen-minute schedule would be made until tonight. No disorder attended the start of the first train.

No attempt to run surface cars
were made, nor was any promised.
The telephone cable of the Metropolitan elevated was cut last night at Madison Ave. This branch of the elevated system has not yet attempted to run trains. President Budd said
it was the first damage to property
since the strike began.

Rioting or any serious disorder was absent yesterday, the first day of the strike, but police continue on guard
at the car bars throughout the city today to prevent violence. The only act of violence reported within the last 24 hours was when a strike patrol
pistolier hurled a missile at an elevated train. It struck a detective,
who was acting as guard.

Pence proposals and offers were believed to have been made in making the Illinois state board of arbitration
is prepared to take action at once toward the settlement of the strike.
The board sent a committee to the transit company and union leaders offering state arbitration.

The aldermanic committee of which Mayor Thompson is chairman, assumes complete charge of the situation in so far as the city government is concerned in an effort to effect an immediate settlement. The committee was appointed at a meeting of the city council last night.

The council passed an ordinance
seeming to prohibit the employment of strike breakers, but it was said today it would not go into effect for several days, if signed by the mayor.
Aldermen will prohibit the employment of a motorman unless he has been employed in the city for at least a year and has been a conductor for fourteen days. The instructors must be men of three years experience and must have been employed for the preceding twelve months on lines in Chicago.

Acts of Violence.
Another train was subject of an "air raid" when a man standing on the roof of a building near 18th street hurled a brick to a car containing twenty people. The missile hit a platform railing and bounced through the window of the door. No one was injured.

An acid bomb was thrown this afternoon at a building at Wells and West Kinzie streets. It smashed
a window of a northbound elevated train, but did not other damage.

An attempt to wreck or damage one of the later trains, which started from the south side, was made by two men who stood on a fire escape along the right of way. They attempted to throw a big plank in front of the train but the plank struck the rear platform of the train and did little damage.

Several minor cases of violence
were reported in the afternoon. A one of whom was a girl, paid fines

but Miss Wilson in default took the jail term. She has not been paroled

Monroe, Wis., June 15.—Senator
Paul Husting announced the recommendation for the reappointment as postmaster Emery A. Odell, present republican occupant of the office, as today was favored by the appointment committee.

The reappointment settles a bitter factional

erally. Mr. Odell is the first republican postmaster in the state who has

Beloit, Wis., June 15.—Charles W.

day as postmaster at Beloit by Sen-

cally active. Harry Rosenthal, assistant postmaster, was named by the committee from the viewpoint of efficiency.
Steele is to succeed David Worthing-

INCREASED MILITARY STRENGTH IS URGED

NATIONAL EXPERTS SPEAK ON
IMMEDIATE NEEDS OF NA-TION FOR DEFENSE

NEW POLICY IS NEEDED

Claim Is Made by Former Secretary of War That Both Army and Navy Are Deteriorating
Under Present Rule.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
New York, June 15.—George von L.
Meyer, who was secretary of the navy in President Taft's cabinet, addressing the Peace and Preparation Conference of the National Security League at luncheon today, asserted that the American navy is deteriorating in the respects in which he believed such to be the case and urged that investigation of the national defense and a comprehensive plan
for the future should be made obligatory upon the next congress.

Lack of battle-cruisers, airships,
armed aeroplanes and men, lack of a naval reserve of experienced men,
lack of a comprehensive policy of national defense, lack of general public knowledge of the navy's condition,
reduction of complements of some ships
to man other and newer ships and general unpreparedness on the part of many battleships and other fighting units were enumerated as instances of naval inferiority. Mr.
Meyer said, in part:

"Of the thirty-three battleships we have only twenty-one that are fitted for service without long delay. Furthermore, we have about seventy outstanding fighting ships not prepared for service in case of emergency."
"We lack battle cruisers, airships
and armed aeroplanes."

"The complement of all torpedo destroyers has been reduced from fifteen to twenty-five percent to get men to man other ships. The reduction in personnel is a serious handicap, reduces the efficiency of the destroyers, affects contentment, and prevents the boat being kept in good condition."

"The Atlantic fleet alone needs 5,000
more men."
"The reserve fleet, at Philadelphia
was largely depleted in order to get a crew for the Alabama when she was ordered to Hampton Roads to enforce neutrality."

"The review in New York this year
was a poor imitation of previous reviews in that the reserve fleet was absent. It was a mere parade, not a mobilization. It did not indicate the true condition of the navy because the people did not know the whole truth."

"For lack of men, ships are laid up
at navy yards, where they rapidly deteriorate, like a vacant house. All the ships of all kinds of navy are laid up for lack of men are needed in Mexico and elsewhere, and should be ready for an emergency call to prevent the employment of battleships
for the navy and the army. The complement of enlisted men at shore stations and training stations has been cut down,
with a decided loss of efficiency; and
greatly the discontent and discomfort of the men."

"To enumerate the ships in the navy and make a list of new ships authorized gives no idea whatever of the true condition of the navy. The readiness for war. Ships without men are of little use, and a navy
without a policy, and with no well-considered organization at the navy department would be a condition of chaos in event of war."

"The statement of Assistant Secretary Roosevelt that we need 18,000 men, is undoubtedly true. The navy is in a state of disrepair. The navy target practice this year is no better than it was ten years ago."

"Congress is negligent in not having established a national council of defense, a general staff, and an organized naval reserve of 50,000 experienced men."

Need Definite Policy.
"In having attention to these defects, I have not done so for the sake of criticizing the present head of the navy, for although I feel that he must be held responsible for the demoral-ization of the navy, the present head of the navy is a man of great ability
and the decreased efficiency of the navy
at the present time, yet the lack of any definite naval policy for many years, except in the general board of the navy and the admiralty here today and congress to recognize the necessity for such a policy, has placed
us in a position of inferiority, which circumstances may lead us to war, or may lead us to a great embarrassment,
as well as discredit to the country."

People Should Know.
"The investigation of our national defense and comprehensive plan for the future should be an obligatory matter in the next congress. The navy belongs to the people of the country, and they have a right to know its condition and how it is being managed. The mere appropriation of money to increase the navy
will not be instrumental in bringing about
the necessary reforms or military efficiency of the organization, that can only be accomplished by an increase of actual conditions and a demand for needed changes in the way of military reforms, which would be forced upon congress by an enlightened public opinion."

"This investigation and knowledge
has been denied to the people by the leaders of the party in power. It is deplorable that there should be an anecdote to deceive the people in a matter of such vital importance. We have reached a period in the world's history when it must be recognized that if we are to maintain peace, and safeguard the lives of our people, we must be prepared to defend our countries. Let us not forget—as the nation is, so also are its government,
its public, its army and its navy."

"Be Prepared."
It would be the blindest folly for this country to regulate its conduct upon the assumption that there will be no more wars or trust its destiny
to any temporal power but its own.
said Jacob M. Dickinson, former secretary of the navy, and a member of the league, advocating better military and naval preparedness. At present, he said, the army and navy defenses of the United States with any first class power. He added that "the idea of our getting into war is not altogether
chimerical."

Judge Dickinson was a speaker at a luncheon meeting in Carnegie Hall
of the Peace and Preparation Conference, in session here today and tomorrow, under the auspices of the National Security League. He said that
"however we may think of wars,
their injustice, or their folly," he said, "when we know that there have been but few periods throughout the centuries when there has not been a war, we know that within our short
national life we have had but few de-

HIRED MAN SKIPS
EVEN WITH BARLEY

While Family Is Away Hired Man
Sells Barley and Departs for Parts Unknown.

Lima, Center, Wis., June 14.—Two weeks ago Mr. Gould discharged his man and hired a tramp by the name of Herman Schultz to help him on the farm. Saturday morning Mr.
Gould and wife went to Milwaukee
and returned Monday to find that Schultz had "skipped" and was not his best friend. The cow had not been milked since Saturday morning,
but had been turned out to pasture.
On investigating it was discovered
that all of the grain, some 2100
pounds of barley, and many valuables
were missing from the house.

Inquiry at Whitewater, revealed
the facts that the team was there
and that the grain had been sold to Dadman Brothers and that Schultz
had forged Gould's name to the check endorsement. The team had been left standing on the street until the marshal found them and took them to the bitch barn.

Schultz gave his age as 39, was five feet and eight inches tall, thick set and dark complexion. Gave his home
as Milwaukee and search being made for him there. No trace has been discovered of him as yet.

sides of the river and traced down
several clues, but without result. It is now believed Over escaped by walking to one of the nearby villages
to catch a railroad train.

WARNED TO PREPARE FOR

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
San Francisco, June 15.—In view of the increase in immigration which will in all probability succeed the close of the war in Europe, delegates
at attendance at the American Society of Tropical Medicine, which is meeting here today, received with great interest the report of Surgeon
General McLean to the United States Public Health Service, now
Commissioner of Health of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, on "The Control of Asiatic Cholera on International Routes."

The report included a consideration
of the prevention of the introduction of the disease by sea routes and land routes through the establishment of frontier quarantine stations. The essentials of successful quarantine were fully discussed, and a considerable portion of the report was devoted to the technique of bacteriological examinations for the determination of the cholera vibrio, the causative agent
of cholera. Several time-saving measures were suggested, and tests which could be rapidly applied were considered in detail.

DIFFICULT SELECTIONS

Mrs. Iva Bigelow Weaver of Milwaukee
Will Render Solos—Seniors
Wear Cap and Gown on Streets.

A splendid array of musical numbers, from some of the world's best composers, will be rendered on Tuesday evening at the high school auditorium-gymnasium, when the class of 1915 of the Janesville high school will open their commencement exercises. The program as arranged and directed by Miss Emily Sewell, comprises difficult selections, including solos by Mrs. Iva Bigelow Weaver, a noted soprano from Milwaukee.

Class President.

The success of the musical night June, when it was first attempted, has brought about the cry for holding a similar entertainment and to abandon the class night exercises. Through faithful practice the seniors have been able this year to master even more difficult pieces than last season, and there is every indication that the exercises tomorrow evening will be most interesting to the listeners. President of the class, George Kallvelage will deliver the address of welcome tonight.

The class this year will be the seventy-seven names that appear below the seniors having been unusually successful in their examinations: Members of the junior class are at work decorating the auditorium with crimson and black, the senior class colors. The class has selected for its motto, "Here Endeth the First Lesson," this motto being the choice of the majority of the class.

The caps and gowns arrived Saturday and many of the senior girls are wearing them on the streets. These costumes will be seen extensively during the week, as they were rented for six days. They are gray in color and are of a different pattern than the college cap and gown. This custom is reaching high schools throughout the United States, Janesville being one of the few high schools in the state adopting it.

The second annual popularity contest was a big event during the school year that is about to close. The students are the ones to select the two most popular students in making their choice, Miss Ruth Souman was first place as the most popular girl student with Leslie Stewart, football player, second. The most popular boy, both students are seniors and will be graduated on Thursday night. Miss Souman is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John P. Souman, 420 South Main street, while Leslie Stewart is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Stewart, 1108 West Bluff street. They won honors from the scholarship standpoint as well as from the popularity standpoint.

The last rehearsal for the old Tudor pageant, to be presented at three o'clock on Wednesday afternoon in the Court House Park, was held Monday afternoon at the high school building. The costumes in this year's spectacle are the best ever worn by pageant participants of the local institution. The production of Robin Hood is a difficult one, students at the University of Wisconsin having staged it at Madison a few weeks ago. The

STREET DEPARTMENT
HAS MUCH TROUBLE
OWING TO WEATHERCold Weather Stops Oiling Operations
This Morning—Rushing Repairs
and Street Improvement Work
Handicapped severely by the weather conditions, the street department is working at an extra large force of workmen and every available wagon on team, to repair damages caused during the last month and a half by the incessant rains. Owing to the cold weather Monday all street oiling operations were stopped for it was useless to spread oil without warm weather upon which the success of the surface treatment depends.

In all cities throughout the state oiling has been hindered by the cold weather. Unless there is warmth enough to run the oil, it will not penetrate the surface on the hilly portions where there are less shade trees and the oil has a tendency to run down the hill. Where the material was spread in the grade, great trouble was experienced. The great formed in puddles and during the heavy rain was washed in the gutters and spread on the sidewalks and on top for protection. In the third ward sand which had been laid in the gutter was washed out and the heavy rainfall Saturday night coupled with the stopping of the oiling of the street department is experiencing trouble in the repair and it is estimated that the damage done to the street during the last month by the rain softening the pavements for the heavy traffic—winter months. Places where the rain was laid on grades, the rain has washed out huge holes and curves compelling seeping and rolling. On Milton avenue it is expected the repairs will take a week's more time. The street the upper end had been graded with material taken from the macadam railroad track which was laid from the city crusher back when it was accomplishing a saving. Much rubble here and rolled during the last two weeks. It was then completed the avenue will be oiled and will be a decided improvement.

At the stone quarry, a new pit was opened this week, where good material had been obtained for repair work from the top course of the new streets in the lower bed. The workmen at the quarry will be reduced during the coming week for the new pit blasted Saturday is nearer the crusher and saves over a hundred yards of haul.

Street material is also being obtained at two other pits where gravel and clay are being hauled for filling of holes and crossings. After the filling job is completed one gang of workmen will be placed on Pleasant street where repairs are urgently needed. This thoroughfare is in a bad condition owing to the building of the thirty-six inch storm sewer here last year. In the fourth ward rubble is being laid on several streets to be graded and rolled before being oiled. In all cases the street department tries to repair the rough places and cross walks before the oiling is started.

"It is impractical to oil under the present conditions," said Street Commissioner P. J. Goodman this morning. "The cold weather and rain prevent the oil from running and what oil needs, above all other conditions, is hot weather to make it penetrate."

ELEVEN YEAR OLD BOY SWATS 14,800 FLIES

WALTER MEYERS OF WEBSTER
SCHOOL PROVES WORST
ENEMY TO FLY THIS YEAR.

1914 RECORD SMASHED

Meyers Alone Almost Totaled as Many Killed as Last Year—Alfred Meyers Second With
8,000.

In 1914 the Junior Civic League inaugurated a campaign against the fly. They interested the housewife, the worker, the merchant, and the school children but most particularly they interested the school children. During the period the campaign was waged in the spring and early summer of 1914, 18,000 flies met death at the hands of the children. Of the number killed by others who were swung into the campaign against the pest there can be no record, but extremely conservative estimates say at least four times the number killed by the children must have been killed by others.

In 1915, this year, the campaign was continued. It opened March 20 and closed June 1. In the period of less than three months the school children smashed and literally smothered the record of 1914. Seventy-one thousand and nine hundred were killed by the youngsters during this time. For this number the league paid out the amount of $53.70. Flies were redeemed at ten cents per hundred from March 20 up to May 15 inclusive, from then on till the close of the campaign they brought five cents for each hundred.

One eleven year old youth alone came within less than four thousand flies of equalling the grand total of the campaign of 1914. This was Walter Meyers, a fifth grade pupil of the Webster school. Young Meyers killed exactly 14,800 of the pests. Alfred Meyers of the same school was second highest with a total of 8,000. Together these two boys more than topped the number destroyed by the children last year.

The campaign was started early this year because of the warm weather in April. The good results of the move are easily seen, according to members of the committee, Miss Agnes Weber, chairman, Mrs. Francis Grant, Miss Louise Merrill, Miss Mary Mount and Miss Kathryn Burke as associate members.

Following is the list of the boys and girls who swatted the pests and the number they killed:

Walter Meyer, 14,800; Alfred Meyer, 8,000; Duane Phillips, 7,400; William Hasselauer, 5,000; William Close, 4,100; Francis McCarthy, 3,600; Clifford Vandell, 2,900; George W. Brown, 2,400; Ralph Foltz, 2,200; Edna Grieger, 1,900; Hubert Hilton, 1,400; Margaret Birch, 1,300; Joe Zastoupil, 1,300; George McGee, 1,200; George Buggs, 1,000; Wallace Anderson, 950; Edna Zahn, 900; Ruth Turville, 800; Lillian Cornell, 800; Veronica Toldrain, 700; Joe Schindler, 600; Parris Hitchcock, 500; Charles H. Smith, 500; Edward Vandell, 500; Harold Zahn, 500; Alice Sager, 500; Ethel Connell, 500; Bernice Gitchell, 400; Ethel Mantel, 400; Edna Green, 400; Magdalen Collip, 400; Margaret Connell, 400; George Seva, 300; Elmer Hanson, 300; George Stanton, 300; Harold Sager, 300; Albert Sager, 300; Helen Martin, 300; John Burger, 250; Helen Farnold, 200; Richard Buggs, 200; Edna Carlson, 200; Otto Buggs, 200; Alice Meyer, 200; Nancy De Lisle, 100; Lucile Hartshorn, 100; Harold Loch, 100; Gwendolyn Cannon, 100; Fred Brohm, 100; Sadie Conn, 100; William Rheault, 100; Anthony Newbaum, 100. Total, 71,900.

In a special pamphlet entitled "Two Kinds of Flies, and How to Prevent Them," which the league distributed, they tell of the manner of making Jamesville or any other city, for that matter, a flyless city. The text of the pamphlet is printed in full:

There are many kinds of flies, but the two most common kinds and the two most dangerous to human life are the house fly and the stable fly. They look much alike, they are both flies, but they are as different as the pickaxe and the sucker, which are both fish.

The stable fly is a little smaller and grayer than the house fly. The stable fly is the fly that bites. The house fly cannot bite.

The stable fly bites animals and lives upon their blood, and hence it is found chiefly about stables. It does not eat ordinary food, so is not readily caught in traps, but swatters and sticky fly paper will get it.

The house fly comes about the house and in it when it can, walks with dirty feet upon our food. It brings typhoid, consumption, diphtheria, summer complaint and other diseases to the household.

The stable fly is the carrier of infantile paralysis—that terrible menaceto children.

The house fly seldom travels more than five hundred yards from where it is born, while the stable fly follows animals and may go many miles. Both these kinds of flies breed in filth, especially in manure. The stable fly also breeds in fermenting lawn clippings and weeds.

To Prevent Flies.
First: Take care of garbage and refuse, especially manure.

Flies lay their eggs in many rotting or fermenting substances, but most of them prefer moist manure. One fly produces hundreds of eggs. The eggs hatch into small maggots in a few hours, but it takes ten days before they become flies.

If the manure is drawn away once a week it prevents breeding. Where manure is spread out and dries it is harmless.

In parts of China, where all manure and garbage from towns is carried out upon the fields every day, flies have disappeared.

Where manure cannot be removed every week, it can be made harmless by keeping it in a screened enclosure within a tight covered bin, so flies cannot get to it.

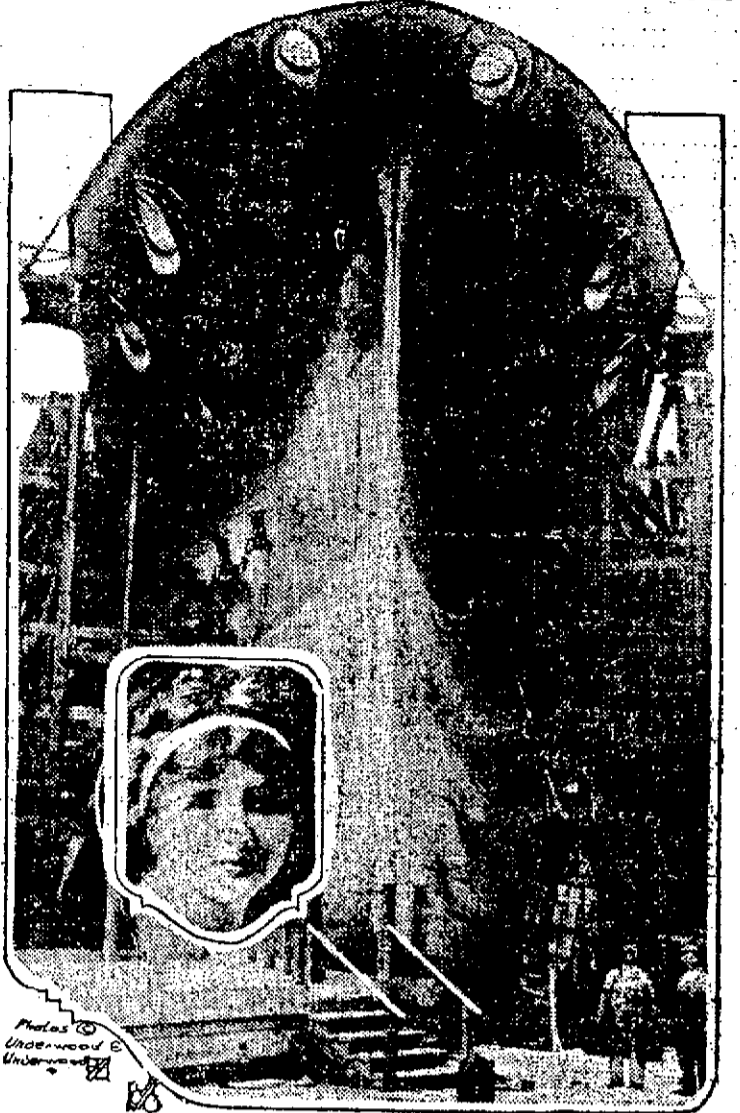

If in an open pile, few eggs will hatch in it if it is well sprinkled once a week with a solution of 1½ pounds of salt to a gallon of water, or one quart of kerosene to a gallon of water, or if dusted with slaked lime; or best and surest of all, if sifted over with powdered borax, one pound to eight bushels of manure, and afterwards sprinkled with water to wash the borax in.

Second, take care of outhouse vaults. There should be no space between an outhouse building and the ground so that light or flies can go into a dark place. If the vault cannot be made tight it should be disinfected weekly with any of the germicides named above. Retting and fermenting substances are cared for, we can have a flyless city.

The leaders of the new movement are mostly officials of the Independent Labor party or of the United Union of Democratic Control. Their organization, they state, is "a fellowship for common counsel and are not prepared to bear arms in the event of conscription, whatever the penalties for refusing." The articles of membership explain further: "The No-Conscription Fellowship is an organization of men likely to be called upon to undertake military service in the event of conscription, who will refuse from conscientious motives to bear arms because they consider human life to be sacred and cannot, therefore, assume the responsibility of taking human life. They deny the right of Governments to say you shall bear arms, and will oppose every effort to introduce compulsory military service into Great Britain. Should such efforts be successful, they will, whatever the consequences may be, obey their conscientious convictions rather than the commands of Governments."

Primitive Matches.
The first matches of which we have any account were thin splinters of wood about four inches long, tipped with sulphur. They were ignited when live coals or other fire were not available by means of a tinder box and its companion, flint or steel. Fire was first communicated to the tinder by sparks of burning metal struck from the steel by the flint.

PRESENTATION OF WAR BOOK WEDNESDAY

This Newspaper the First to Offer
Graphic Volume Direct From Firing Lines.

Wednesday is the opening day for the presentation of the Gazette's War Book, a volume of thirty fully illustrated and bristling with facts of the gigantic European catastrophe.

Some of the scenes and some of the accounts of eye-witnesses to be found between the covers of this de luxe volume will fairly stun the imagination, and there are instances where prosaic English is inadequate to fully express this awful tempest of kindly wrath being waged at the expense of the flower of the manhood of eight nations.

This is the first book ever published concerning the European war which adheres strictly to the facts, and every vestige of rumor, speculation and bias so characteristic of the hastily prepared accounts during the early months of the war, has been avoided.

The Gazette, with its known vigilance to its readers' interests and welfare, has watched the gathering and the compiling of this stirring account for months, and out of the material publications on the market arranged to secure an allotment from the first edition of this elaborate 35 volume for presentation to its readers.

The text of this authoritative, unbiased account of the first six months of the world's greatest war has been ably edited and arranged by the well known writer, Willis John Root, and the illustrations found on nearly every page cover the field from the assassination of the Austrian heir to the last phase of the German submarine warfare, concise, gripping, accurate and complete.

Every library, every school child, every man and woman who reads should avail themselves today of this opportunity to secure a copy of this excellent work, which represents the best procurable in contents and the highest skill in printing, illustrating and binding.

Clip the coupon printed on another page of this issue and present it with two others with the expense amount of 38c, scarcely enough to represent the value of the high class color plates alone which appear in this edition.

PARIS READING MORE THAN A YEAR AGO LIBRARY REPORTS SHOW

Paris, June 15.—Paris reading more than it did a year ago, and that notwithstanding the fact that the population is less than it was by several hundred thousands. The statistics furnished by the municipal lending libraries show that the number of books taken out in the first four months of the present year was over 18,000 more than the figure for the corresponding months of 1914.

Not only the quantity but also the quality of the books read has gone up. There has been a slump in fiction of all kinds, and a great increase in the demand for works on science and history. Books dealing with Russia, England, Serbia, Belgium and Italy enjoy long waiting lists.

Christy Mathewson

Famous Baseball Pitcher, says:

"Tuxedo gets to me in a natural, pleasant way. It's what I call good, honest, companionable tobacco—the kind to stick to."

Tuxedo Keeps You In Good Trim

Christy Mathewson, lovingly known as "The Old Master," is probably the greatest pitcher baseball has ever known. This wonderful athlete is noted for his clear-headed common sense, his quick wits, perfect physical condition, and absolute control over his nerves. His use and endorsement of Tuxedo prove that this inspiring and healthful tobacco is helpful to mind and body.

Tuxedo

just sort of oozes its gentle way into your life and suddenly you realize its powers for good—because it puts peace in your mind and a happy taste in your mouth. Tuxedo's flavor is so enticingly mild and delicately fragrant it will not irritate the most sensitive throat.

All the bite and sting have been removed by the famous "Tuxedo Process." This exclusive process of refining the very best Kentucky Burley tobacco has been widely imitated, but without success.

THE CURRENTS OF TRADE.

History tells us of the various wars of past centuries that opened new currents of trade between nations.

hitherto separated by seemingly impassable barriers. In fact war is the great teacher of geography. It also impresses in a forceful and lucid way lessons in international exchange, a subject theoretical or nebulous to the average citizen, in times of peace.

The movement of gold from Japan to the United States has been suspended.

The reasons are interesting, and it may surprise the careless thinker to know that this Trans-Pacific trade has an intimate relation to the attempt to force the Dardanelles at all costs.

Japan, in fact, has been acting as broken for Russia. War supplies have been trans-shipped there for Vladivostok, to take the long journey over the Trans-Siberian railroad. But the port of Archangel in the Arctic sea is now free from ice.

Russian supplies are moving to the west, and Japan can afford to suspend the export of gold in payment for them.

But Archangel is only a port five months of the year. Here is where the vital importance of access to the Black sea comes in. This is why the allies are not afraid of sacrificing a battleship or two, if they can once get their way into the Sea of Mar-mara. What the German navy, lacking experience in that region, has failed to see, the British have recognized in all times since navies existed at all.

British commanders know that you cannot have omelers without breaking eggs. Of course all sunk battleships look alike in the German provincial papers. But the shrewd observer here will notice that, with one exception, the British and even the French war vessels torpedoed have been of an antiquated class.

The last of the British vessels sunk in the Dardanelles was more than twenty years old.

Well might sailors say: "We that are about to die, salute you!" Vessels of semi-obsolete class torpedoed in the North sea must have been, to the knowledge of their officers at least, a triumph or a majestic sink in the Dardanelles is a small matter where the British navy is being strengthened by vessels like the Queen Elizabeth and her five consorts.

Rudyard Kipling once said that if the British army had always waited for supports the British empire would have ended at Brighton beach. No doubt the warships at the gates of the Black sea are taking risks which would horrify the eminently safe tactician Von Tirpitz. If they can force the passage, a dozen obsolete battleships would be a trifling price to pay for the enormous advantages involved.

FUTURE BELLIGERENTS.

That two more of the Balkan states will be involved in the colossal conflict in Europe on the side of the allies, seems immediately probable.

Never in their history was it possible for Rumania and Bulgaria to secure long desired concessions of territory inhabited by kindred races on such advantageous terms. It is even said that the concessions to Bulgaria and military co-operation have been arranged.

This would raise a new and formidable attack upon the southeast frontier of Austria, and would leave Bulgaria free to cut the communications between the Turkish capital and the peninsula of Gallipoli. Austria would then be occupied upon four fronts, and the relief of the pressure upon Russia would be immediately felt. Germany, in fact, would soon be fighting on every one of her borders, with the exception of the Dutch frontier, and that of Denmark. The Swiss neutrality would be useless to her, as that country is already surrounded in its own access to the sea by the allies.

It was pointed out in these columns, near the beginning of the war, that the German supplies of ammunition and the relief of the pressure upon Russia would be immediately felt. It was pointed out in these columns, near the beginning of the war, that the German supplies of ammunition and the relief of the pressure upon Russia would be immediately felt. Germany, in fact, would soon be fighting on every one of her borders, with the exception of the Dutch frontier, and that of Denmark. The Swiss neutrality would be useless to her, as that country is already surrounded in its own access to the sea by the allies.

CHICAGO CAR LINE STRIKE

DELAYS PASSENGER TRAINS

Milwaukee road passenger trains, Janesville and Madison bound, leaving Chicago at four and six o'clock last evening, were somewhat delayed because of the passenger congestion consequent on the street car strike and tie-up in the Windy City. D. L. Bush, general manager and head of the operating department, has announced that his road will not run any extra suburban trains if necessary, second sections will be run to the regular passenger trains, however. Northwestern trains reaching here have also been running on disrupted schedules because of the strike.

PAGEANT WEDNESDAY IF WEATHER PERMITS

OLD TUDOR SPECTACLE, ROBINHOOD, TO BE PRESENTED BY THE SENIOR CLASS.

200 WILL TAKE PART

Forty-Eight Freshman Girls Are Milkmaids—Fantastic Dances are to be a Marked Feature.

Weather permitting, the senior graduating class of the Janesville high school, assisted by freshmen, sophomores and junior girls, will present before the public of the city, on Wednesday afternoon, the old Robin-Hood spectacle, the scenes of which are laid about the court of Maid Marian and Robin-Hood. The pageant will be given in the Court House at three o'clock.

Robin-Hood, the predominating figure in the spectacle, was popularly regarded as a leader of a band of outlaws, who ranged through the forest of Sherwood in Nottinghamshire and South Yorkshire. He was an excellent archer and skillful with the quarter-staff, but his character of plundering the rich only and giving of his surplus to the poor, has endeared him to the rustic imagination. According to one view, Robin-Hood was a 12th century Anglo-Norman noble, Robert Fitz Odo. Again he is identified with Robert, Earl of Huntingdon. The games of tomorrow are taken from the ancient May games, when Robin-Hood was made the principal character. These games personify the spirit of springtime. The Maid Marian, who figures with Robin-Hood, appears to be simply the allegorical queen of the May. Both Robin-Hood and Maid Marian are supplied with three attendants each. Malcolm Douglas as Robin-Hood, and Margaret Birmingham as Maid Marian, have both worked hard on their parts and the entire list of characters will be impersonated by senior girls and boys in the same manner as they were impersonated by the freshmen girls.

One of the prettiest dances of the afternoon will be the one of the Milkmaids, in which forty-eight freshman girls take part. Each milkmaid is dressed in the old familiar dress, carrying a pail, shiny tin pail. The Shepherdesses, composed of sixteen upper class girls, will furnish the audience with a fantastic dance of difficult steps, each carrying a shepherd's crook. The costumes for this dance are among the prettiest of the day. Twenty-four senior girls make up the village characters, this dance attracting considerable attention in past years because of its technique. In this pretty dance, the girls form in three sets with eight in a set.

Miss Marian Fletcher, as the "Spirit of Spring," will favor the audience with one of the most graceful dances of the day. She will perform at times on her toes, while the Spirits of the Forest will dance behind her. Miss Fletcher is truly an excellent little dancer.

Edward Schenck, as Friar Tuck, the Jester, will, with Harold Stokney, as the Hobby Horse, entertain the audience with past year's antics of the parade, throughout the entire spectacle. The public is invited to attend this wonderful production, which has been the popular May Festival for students and universities to stage throughout the country in past years, scarcely a high school attempting to handle so difficult a pageant. Miss Alice Abell, as director, has worked to the best of her ability. Her efforts in St. Mary's directing so large a list of characters, have been left untold and the people who attend will be left the critics in tomorrow's big outdoor event of the year.

Rock Island, Ill., will play the Cardinals Sunday at Fair Grounds.

FINDS BOY ASLEEP IN CRACKER BOXES

Patrolman Takes Neglected Lad to Police Station To Be Cared For—May Prosecute Parents.

This morning at one-thirty o'clock as Patrolman Charles Harmon was making the rounds in the alley near the postoffice he chanced to see two large cracker boxes closed together. The officer carelessly knocked the boxes apart and was a most surprised person when he found a shivering lad, half asleep, who rolled out from between the boxes and rubbed his eyes. The lad arose and without crying started blowing on his hands to warm them.

The patrolman took the boy to the police station where he was lodged in the specially prepared bunk of the woman's cell. The boy snuggled down into the quilts and was fast asleep within a few minutes.

Chief Harmon interviewed the lad whose name he learned is Hugh Boyce and "sometimes" lives with his parents at 215 South River street. He is a few months past eight years of age and has not been home for some time.

For clothes he had a shirt, a pair of overalls and shoes, without a stitch of underclothing or stockings.

The lad was taken by Desk Sergeant W. E. Crocker to the restaurant, where a hearty breakfast was served him.

Within record time, "Hughie" as he was called by the police, made the food disappear and his spirits were raised as he sat at the table.

First good meal in some time, Poor-master Asa Anderson was told of the case and took the youngster to a home where he will be kept until court proceedings are instituted to have the parents brought before the magistrate for neglect and abandonment. A new suit and underclothes were furnished as "Hughie" did not know what to make of the new dress.

According to the story given by the boy he has not stayed at home for some time, not knowing what home care and love really is. He told the police that his father beat him unmercifully at times and it was a rare occasion that he slept at a home.

For food he lived off the helpings handed out by the restaurant owners and slept in boxes like a street urchin.

District Attorney S. C. Dunwiddie today filed a notice in the municipal court whereby the parents of the alleged neglected boy were summoned to appear in court on Thursday morning.

Action will be taken to have Master Boyce sent to the Sparta Home for delinquent children by the court.

The child all this agitation is being raised about bringing children from the tenements here to a vacation. It would not be unwise to have steps taken to take proper care of some of the neglected children in this city," declared one of the state attorneys.

Every night the police have to send a number of children home at all hours of the night, even after midnight.

CHAPTER XI.

The Zweisbund.

On his second visit to the sick man lodged in the padded luxuries of one of the guest rooms at Mereside, made on the morning following the Grierson home-coming, Doctor Farnham found the hospital status established, a good-natured Swede installed as nurse, the bells muffled and Miss Margery playing the part of sister superior and dressing it, from the dainty, felt-soled slippers to the smooth banding of her hair.

An hour later, however, it was the Margery of the Wahaska renaissance, joyously clad and radiant, who was holding the reins over a big English trap horse, parading down Main street and smiling greetings to everybody.

By one of the chances which he was willing to call fortunate, Edward Raymer was at the curb to help her down from her high seat in the trap when she pulled the big horse to a stand in front of her father's bank.

"I'm the luckiest man in Red Earth county; I was just wondering when I should get in line to tell you how glad we are to have you back," he said, with his eyes shining.

"Are you, really? You are not half as glad as I am to be back. There is no place like home, you know."

"There isn't, and there oughtn't to be," was his quick response. "I've been hoping you'd come to look upon Wahaska as your home, and now I know you do."

"Why shouldn't I?" she laughed, and she was reaching for a paper-wrapped package on the trap seat when he got it for her.

"You are going somewhere?—may I carry it for you?" he asked; but she shook her head and took it from him.

"Only into the bank," she explained; and she was beginning to tell him he must come to Mereside when the sick-man episode intruded itself, and the invitation was broken in the midst, very prettily, very effectively.

"I know," Raymer said, in instant sympathy. "You have your hands full just now. Will you let me say that it's the finest thing I ever heard of—your taking that poor fellow home and caring for him?"

Gertrude Raymer had once said in her brother's hearing that Miss Grierson's color would be charming if it were only natural. Looking into Miss Grierson's eyes Raymer saw the reflection of the slander in the suffusing wave of generous embarrassment deepening in warm tints on the perfect neck and cheek.

"Oh, dear me!" she said in pathetic protest; "is it all over town so soon? I'm afraid we are still dreadfully 'country' in Wahaska, Mr. Raymer. Please cut it down to the bare, commonplace facts whenever you have a chance, won't you? The poor man was sick and nobody knew him, and somebody had to take care of him."

Like the doctor, Raymer asked the inevitable question, "Who is he, Miss Margery?" and, like the doctor again, he received the same answer, "I haven't the smallest notion of an idea. But that doesn't make the slightest difference," she went on. "He is a young human being, sick and helpless. It ought to be enough for any of us to know."

Raymer stood watching her as she tripped lightly into the bank, and when he went to catch his car the conservative minority had lost whatever countenance or support he had ever given it.

True to her latest characterization of herself, Margery had a nod and a pleasant smile for the young man behind the brass grilles as she passed on her way to the president's room in the rear. She found her father at his desk, thoughtfully munching the unburned half of one of the huge cigars, and named her errand.

"I want a safety-deposit box big enough to hold this," she said briefly, exhibiting the paper-wrapped packet.

Jasper Grierson, deeply immersed in a matter of business to which he had given the better part of the forenoon, replied without looking up: "Go and tell Murray; he'll fix you out."

As on any other business day, President Grierson was solidly planted in his heavy armchair before a desk well littered with work. He nodded absently to his daughter as she returned, and knowing that the nod meant that he would come to the surface of things—her surface—when he could, she turned aside to the window and waited.

Though she had seen him develop day by day in less than three of the thirty-odd years of his western exile, her father offered a constant succession of surprises to her. When she opened the door to retrospection, which was not often, she remembered that the man who had stumbled upon the rich quartz vein in Yellow Dog Gulch could scarcely sign his name legibly to the paper recording his claim; that in those days there was no prophecy of the ambitious present in the man, half drunk and half outlaw, whose name in the Yellow Dog district had been a synonym for—but these were unpleasant memories, and Margery rarely indulged them.

Just now she put them aside by turning her back to the window and taking credit for the tasteful and luxurious appointments of the private office, with its soft-piled rug and heavy mahogany furnishings. Her father was careless of such things; totally indifferent to them in business hours; but she saw to it that his surroundings kept pace with the march of prosperity. Here in Wahaska, as elsewhere, a little judicious display counted for much, even if there were a few bigoted persons who affected to despise it.

"That's Where You Are Mistaken," She Objected Coolly.

She was in the midst of a meditated attack upon the steamship lithographs on the walls—sole remaining landmarks of the ante-Grierson period—when her father wheeled in his pivot chair and questioned her with a lift of his shaggy eyebrows.

"Want to see me, Madgie?"

"Just a moment." She crossed the room and stood at the end of the big desk. He reached mechanically for his checkbook, but she smiled and stopped him. "No; it isn't money this time; it's something that money can't buy. I met Mr. Edward Raymer at the front door a few minutes ago; does he have an account with you?"

Jasper Grierson's laugh was grimly contemptuous.

"The bank isn't making anything out of him. The shoe is on the other foot."

"What is the matter? Isn't he making money with his plant?"

"Oh, yes; his business is good enough. But he's like all the other young fools, nowadays; he ain't content to bet on a sure thing and grow with his capital. He wants to widen out and build and put in new machinery and out a bigger dash generally. Think he's been too slow and sure."

"Are you going to stake him?" Margery wagged relentless war with her birthright inclination to lapse into the speech of the mining camps, but she stumbled now and then in talking to her father.

"I don't know; I guess not. Somehow, I've never had much use for him."

"Why haven't you any use for him?"

"Oh, I don't know—because, until just lately he has never seemed to have much use for me, I guess. It's a stand-off, so far as likings go. I offered to reincorporate his outfit for him six months ago, and told him I'd take fifty-one per cent of the reorganization stock myself; but he wouldn't talk about it. Said what little he had was his own, and he proposed to keep it."

"But now he is willing to let you help him?"

"Not much; he don't look at it in that light. He wants to borrow money from the bank and put up the stock of his close corporation as collateral. It's safe enough, but I don't believe I'll do it."

The chateleine of Mereside came abruptly to the point.

"I want you to do it," she said, decisively.

"The devil you do!" Then, with the dry, door-hinge chuckle: "What's in the wind now?"

"I do want you to put him under obligations to you—the heavier the better. His mother and sister have gone out of their way to snub me, and I want to play even."

Grierson wagged his huge head, and this time the chuckle grew to a guffaw.

"He ain't the man to go to his womenfolks when he gets into hot water. He'll keep it to himself; and they'll go on bluffing you, same as ever."

Miss Grierson pulled on her gauntlets and made ready to go, leisurely, as befitted her pose.

"That is where you are mistaken," she objected, coolly. "It isn't very often I can give you a business tip, but this is one of the times when I can. When John Raymer died, he left an undivided half of his estate to his wife, the other half to be shared equally by the children. At the present moment every dollar the entire family has is invested in the iron plant. You will let Mr. Raymer get himself into hot water, as you call it, and then, when I say the word, you'll reach in and pull him out."

When she was gone, the president selected another of the overgrown cigars from a box in the desk drawer, lighted it, and tilted back in the big armchair to envelop himself in a cloud of smoke. It was his single expensive habit—the never-empty box of Brodingtonian cigars in the drawer—and the indulgence helped him to push the Yellow-Dog period into a remotest past.

After a time the smoke cloud became articulate, rumbling forth chucklings and Elizabethan oaths, mingling with musings idiomatic and profane. "By gad, I believe she thought she was fooling me—I do, for a fact! But it's too thin. Of course, she wants to make the women kowtow, but that ain't all there is to it—not by a jugful. But it's all right; she plays her own hand, and she's built good and able to play it. If she's after Raymer's scalp, he might as well get ready to wear a wig, right now. I'll back her to win, every time."

Accordingly, when Mr. Edward Raymer came out of the president's room at the Farmers' and Merchants' bank the following morning, he was treading upon air. For in his mind's eye there was a fair picture of a great and successful industry to be built upon the substantial extension of credit promised by the capitalist whose presence chamber he had just quitted.

CHAPTER XII.

Loss and Gain.

Striving feebly as one who gathers up the shards and fragments after an explosion, Griswold remembered cloudily the supper of tasteless courses at the Hotel Chouteau. Afterward there were vague impressions, momentary breaches in the wall of inclosing darkness. In one of these intervals a woman had stood beside him, and he seemed to remember that she had put her cool hand on his forehead. When complete consciousness returned, the dream impression was still so sharply defined that he was not surprised to find her standing at his bedside.

Before he could frame any of the queries which came thronging to the door of the returned consciousness, she smiled and shook her head and forbade him.

Later in the day the doctor came; and when the professional requirements were satisfied, Griswold learned the bare facts of his succoring. It was characteristic of the Griswold of other days that the immense obligation under which the Griersons had placed him made him gasp and perspire afresh.

Griswold looked long and earnestly at the face of his professional adviser. It was a good face, clearly lined, benevolent, and, above all, trustworthy.

"Tell me one thing more, doctor, if you can. What was the motive? Was it just heavenly good-heartedness—or—"

The doctor's smile was the least possible shade wintry.

"When you have lived a few years longer in this world of ours, you will not probe too deeply into motives; you will take the deed as the sufficient exponent of the prompting behind it. If I say so much, you will understand that I am not impugning Miss Grierson's motives. There are times when she is the good angel of everybody in sight, Mr.—"

The pause after the courtesy title was significant, and Griswold filled it promptly. "Griswold—Kenneth Griswold. Do you mean to say that you haven't known my name, doctor?"

"We have not. We took the Good Samaritan's privilege and ransacked your belongings—Miss Margery and I—thinking there might be relatives or friends who should be notified."

"And you found nothing?" queried the sick man, a cold fear gripping at his heart.

"Nothing but clothing and your toilet tools, a pistol, and a typewritten book manuscript bearing no signature."

Griswold turned his face away and shut his eyes. Once more his stake in the game of life was gone.

"There was another package of—of papers in one of the grips," he said, faintly; "quite a large package, wrapped in brown paper."

"We found nothing but the manuscript. Could anyone else make use of the papers you speak of?"

Griswold was too feeble to prevail, and he said nothing.

"There was money in the package," he said, leaving the physician to infer what he pleased.

"Ah; then you were robbed. It's a pity we didn't know it at the time. It is pretty late to begin looking for the thief now, I'm afraid."

Dinner Stories

"I owe much of my success to my wife," remarked the literary man.

"Does she help you so much?"

asked the friend.

"Well," explained the literary man, "she never comes near my desk to straighten things up."

Mr. Brief and the poet were waxing warm on the subject of the war. "That will do, gentlemen," said the landlady, tapping the table with the butt end of a tea biscuit. "No war talk here, if you please."

"Ah!" said the poet. "You intend to preserve peace within your board, I see."

And then a bombardment began in

All charity cases without charge, or if said case, finally turning to a bright young man, can you tell me what lightning is?"

"Yes, ma'am," was the ready rejoinder of little Jimmy. "Lightning is streaks of electricity."

"That's right," smiled the teacher, encouragingly. "Now tell me why it is that lightning never strikes twice in the same place."

"Because," answered Jimmy, quite easily, "after it hits once the same place ain't there any more."

Mrs. Jenks, who had recently returned from abroad, was attending afternoon tea which was given in her honor.

"And did you really go to Rome?" asked her hostess.

"I really don't know, my dear," replied Mrs. Jenks. "You see, my husband always bought the tickets."

WHO PAYS?

THE PRICE OF FAME

BY EDWIN BLISS

Fear was upon him, cold, dank fear. Could he have run from the place, could he have put a finish to every ambition he had pressed so closely to his very soul, could he have thrust it all aside at that moment, he would have done so rather than suffer the fiery heat alternating with icy cold that seized his body, be tortured by the prickling fingers at his spine, the harsh grip at his heart.

—don't mind the whispering and talking while you sing. They do it with everyone but Cabosco—"

He heard no more, but these words seared themselves in letters of fire upon his brain. His teeth clicked shut with an audible sound. Suddenly all the stage fright disappeared before an anticipatory rage. They should not whisper and talk while he sang; they should treat his voice with the same respect they treated that of Cabosco. His voice was the equal of the great tenors.

Unconscious of his audience, of the stir of curiosity at his appearance instead of the familiar Cabosco, regardless of everything save overweening desire to win, Henry Merwin hardly realized he was upon the stage before the curtain stared him in the face, the curtain which formed a barrier against the tumultuous applause of the audience at his performance, and shut him into the other world behind the scenes, the world of fellow-singers who made him realize the tremendous impression he had created.

He suddenly felt himself very weak, felt his impotence. He needed help, sympathy—he needed—Ann—

Swiftly he discarded his costume, but fly wiping the grease paint from his countenance. But in his eyes glowed something of happiness, growing from more than fame as, half an hour later, he reread the message he had just written before passing it to the agent.

Ann Merwin, Los Angeles, Cal.: Come to New York at once. No more poverty. HENRY.

He waited in the library, listening to the sounds of delight from Ann's room.

In the week he had tasted the fruit of success and laughed at the fear he had entertained of it. To be sought out by the great director and placed under a contract at a figure he had only vaguely dreamed of ever earning; to be the toast of town and press, to be invited into the very heart of society's most sanctified circles; to know that it was all deserved—surely they were fools who had told him the price to be paid for fame was heavy.

And now Ann was here, was so close to him he had but to tap upon the adjoining door to see her, so close to him he could hear her delighted exclamations over the gown he had bought for her to wear at Mrs. Van Rolphe's reception that very night.

Slowly a frown crossed his forehead, a perplexed and anxious frown. Ann—would Ann be able to live up to the position he had created for her?

A little cry from the doorway, and he clasped her to his heart, fiercely, for the doubt that had been his. But, as he held her away from him, he was filled with the bitter realization that the doubt remained.

Pretty, fresh, wholesome—yet she was obviously uncomfortable in her finery. There was something of the out-of-doors about her that did not seem to fit into the new life. He felt himself guiltily contrasting her with the dark, exotic beauty of Olga Drake, the woman who had made so much of him at a reception of the day before, the woman who had seemed so desirous of being with him alone, despite the gallants besieging her. And Olga Drake, mistress of wealth and beauty, was not less famous as a social dictator that he was as a singer.

In the carriage he could not drive that contrast from his preoccupied mind. He felt himself already a bit irritated at the insistence of Ann that the tiny cottage, the humble little home in Los Angeles should not be sold, that not a stick of the furniture be changed.

He flushed hotly as she stumbled upon her train as they made their entrance at the Van Rolphe's, angry with himself for the impulse which made him seek out the eyes of Olga Drake to find whether she had noticed the slip, more angry to know that he had smiled with her at his wife's mishap. Ann was his wife, the woman he loved, and no one had the right to smile at her.

He turned toward her, assisting her to their hostess, bracing his shoulders against the gibes he knew her manner occasioned, with a smile upon his lips. And then the guilty feeling came upon him that he was feeling the martyr, that he was taking pride in his attitude of suffering.

In the mortification of the moment he found himself offering his arm to Olga Drake, passing his wife without a glance.

"I'm afraid we frightened your poor wife," Miss Drake murmured in his ear.

He looked furtively at Olga Drake at the note of sympathy in her voice. And yet he merely smiled and sought out his wife with his eyes, dropping them more swiftly as they met the mute appeal in Ann's own eyes. He was conscious of chattering volubly about nothing in particular, was aware that his face was burning.

A farmer's daughter he had married. And, equally indifferent to aught she was one still.

VI.

He paced the library floor nervously, every nerve in his body jangling discordantly at the chatter of his wife in the next room, the confusion of her undignified romping with the baby. Only the night before he had given a wretched performance, his voice turning hoarse. Only the night before he had dined with Olga Drake, for the first time in all the months during which their intimacy had grown to such an extent, that there were whispers about it.

First, he had tried to break away from the spell she cast upon him. But his work threw him with her set and his wife used every subterfuge to avoid accompanying him to any affair which might aid him in the social world, always pleading to be allowed to remain with the baby.

Advisory Council of National Association For Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis Meet at Seattle.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Seattle, June 15.—The child was the theme of discussion at Monday night's session of the advisory council of the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis. One of the papers submitted was by Dr. Geo. M. Kober, the President of the Association, who said:

"When we remember that about one-third of the population consists of children up to the age of fifteen years, and that the physical and mental vigor of a nation depends on the environment of childhood and youth, when the whole organism is in a state of plasticity and susceptibility, we cannot fail to appreciate the importance of laying the foundation for a strong and vigorous race at the earliest period possible."

"Since an inherited predisposition plays an important role in the spread of tuberculosis, a rational prophylaxis suggested that parents must be healthy, and that marriage with tuberculous persons should be prohibited. Prenatal care should include proper instruction of the mother in personal hygiene, rational food, improvement of housing and factory conditions. Excessive work and insufficient sleep, improper food are most important causes of premature and delicate babies."

Home is Essential.
A healthy home is essential. Preference should be given to individual homes or apartments in tenements not exceeding two stories. Dark, gloomy and damp houses should be avoided where the death rate is often double or treble that of healthy homes. Damp houses favor the development of catarrhal conditions which render the system more vulnerable and allow bacteria to retain their virulence indefinitely."

Overcrowding favors contact infections and should be avoided by affording at least 500 cubic feet of air space for each person. Night air is not wholesome, and sleeping porches properly screened will do much to develop delicate infants into healthy children, provided proper clothing is furnished."

Danger of Dust.
Household dust should not accumulate as it may contain micro-organisms of disease brought into the house on clothing. All unnecessary ornaments and furniture serving as dusttraps should be discarded in favor of simplicity of furniture, and nonabsorbent walls."

Dr. Scheinker has urged the establishment of compulsory continuation schools for girls between the ages of 16 and 20 years, where instruction relative to the duties and rights of a wife and mother should be given. The suggestion is a timely one, provided thorough training in domestic science is given in the public schools, since well selected, properly cooked food and housekeeping is of the utmost importance. The continuation schools should not only impart instruction in prenatal and infant welfare work, but also in house sanitation, the food, clothing, exercise, and general hygiene of the child."

National Laws.
Dr. William Charles White, medical director of the Tuberculosis League of Pittsburgh, declared the universality of the disease established in a federal program in which the phrase "states rights" should not be allowed to enter. He advised the adoption by all states of the laws affecting tuberculosis prevention enacted in New York and Massachusetts. Discussing the medical profession's responsibility in the battle against tuberculosis, Dr. John Ritter, of Chicago, who is the physician in charge of the Rush Medical College's Tuberculosis Dispensary, told the Clinical Section of the convention that "by the method of percutaneous, or skin vaccination, a larger cutaneous surface may be exposed for the production of these defense agencies that may be possible by any other method."

Asserting that the most frequent problem to be solved in treating the consumptive is food and its assimilation, Dr. Ethel A. Gray, of Chicago, declared that "even since the campaign against tuberculosis attained full headway, forced feeding of highly nutritious food has been the common practice."

This, Dr. Gray said, was radically wrong, for overfeeding often results in complete loss of appetite and very little gain in weight. The best diet is that which appeals to the patient, even if it is a plain corned beef and cabbage, said the physician."

JAPAN OBTAINING
FOREIGN COUNSEL
ON TRADE GROWTH

Take Exception of Past Policy and Obtain Advisors on the Department of Commerce.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Tokio, June 15.—Making an exception of her present-day policy of gradually discontinuing foreign advisers, Japan has recently enlisted the services of such an adviser to the department of commerce. The object is to secure expert counsel in the movement now undertaken by the Japanese to push their trade in all directions.

The appointment is Alexander S. Browne, an Australian, and his special work will be to advise the department of commerce in the development of trade to Australia and the South Seas generally. The gradual relinquishment of foreign advisers is a striking evidence of growing Japanese conviction that Japan is now able to deal with foreign nations in her own way and through the medium of her own people. It is an indication that Japan feels she has absorbed sufficient knowledge of the west to make her efficient by herself in dealing with the west. The abandonment of foreign advisers has been brought about by refraining from appointing successors to the able men who have rendered valuable aid in the past when either resignation or death has terminated their services. The most important instance of this consciousness that Japan is able now to carry on her affairs without foreign aid was the decision not to fill the place when left vacant by the death of the late Henry W. Denison, the distinguished American, who occupied the post of adviser to the department of foreign affairs."

The great war, with the temporary elimination of Germany as a competitor in the markets of the world and Japan's natural desire to expand her trade, led to the decision to employ a commercial expert. The Japanese point of view is that to compete successfully with the foreign countries she must adopt the standard of these countries and be familiar with all the commercial and industrial methods which obtain abroad.

Some Japanese business men have been very desirous lately of raising the standard of their commercial products and of convincing the foreign buyers that they can expect the same efficiency and reliability in Japanese products and manufactured goods as in any other country. Mr. Browne talked this matter over very frankly with members of the Tokyo chamber of commerce. He said he was sorry that Japanese exporters did not bear the best name in Australia. Inferior goods and irregular shipments had caused no end of worry and inconvenience and some exporters even refused to deal directly with Japan as their experience has been unsatisfactory. This reputation was due to the fact that some firms want to "get rich quick and grasp the shadow instead of the substance." He had discovered, he said, while visiting Japanese factories, that very often exporters receive large orders than they can handle. The orders are then distributed among several small factories with the result that products of different grades, shapes and finish are shipped. Japanese exporters should establish a thorough system of inspection and have one standard for export."

Mr. Browne said he thought the Germans had cured such a vast trade was the fact that they had applied science to production. Now Japan has her great opportunity and if she takes advantage of it and lives up to a higher standard of commerce and industry she would not only be able to obtain but to keep an important part of Australian trade and that of the Southern Hemisphere. Of course, Great Britain and the United States would be competitors in the southern markets but Japan would be sure to get her share if she convinced the buyers that she will oppose inferior goods and indifferent shipments."

There are many other indications of Japan's determination to extend her markets in all directions, especially China, where her interests are constantly augmenting."

Next to the American Pacific Mail steamers the great bulk of merchandise is now carried across the Pacific in Japanese steamships which are constantly increasing in number. Japan is desirous to increase her trade relations with the United States and American business men have regarded this as a powerful incentive to establish her friendship with America on a solid and lasting footing. Now that she has taken an important part in the exposition at San Francisco, Japan's leading business men are arranging to send a delegation of prominent merchants to the exposition as an added indication of her desire for wider relations. It is expected that Baron Shibusawa, who is one of the foremost and most popular of Japanese business men, in company with many other leading merchants, will go to San Francisco and perhaps visit other parts of the United States."

WAR PHOTOGRAPH OF ENGLAND'S KING

Although King George of England has not spent much time where the shells fly thickest, he does occasionally don war togs and review his soldiers a long way back from the firing line. This photograph, which has just been received, shows the king in military garb.

Next to the American Pacific Mail steamers the great bulk of merchandise is now carried across the Pacific in Japanese steamships which are constantly increasing in number. Japan is desirous to increase her trade relations with the United States and American business men have regarded this as a powerful incentive to establish her friendship with America on a solid and lasting footing. Now that she has taken an important part in the exposition at San Francisco, Japan's leading business men are arranging to send a delegation of prominent merchants to the exposition as an added indication of her desire for wider relations. A MISTAKE MADE BY MANY.
Don't wait for rheumatism to indicate diseased kidneys. When you suffer pains and aches by day and sleep disturbing bladder weakness by night, feel tired, nervous and run down, the kidneys and bladder should be restored to healthy, strong and regular action. It is a mistake to postpone treatment. Foley Kidney Pills put the kidneys in sound, healthy condition and keep them active and strong all day long taking today. Good results follow the first dose. W. The great war, with the temporary elimination of Germany as a competitor in the markets of the world and Japan's natural desire to expand her trade, led to the decision to employ a commercial expert. The Japanese point of view is that to compete successfully with the foreign countries she must adopt the standard of these countries and be familiar with all the commercial and industrial methods which obtain abroad.

Some Japanese business men have been very desirous lately of raising the standard of their commercial products and of convincing the foreign buyers that they can expect the same efficiency and reliability in Japanese products and manufactured goods as in any other country.

Mr. Browne talked this matter over very frankly with members of the Tokyo chamber of commerce. He said he was sorry that Japanese exporters did not bear the best name in Australia. Inferior goods and irregular shipments had caused no end of worry and inconvenience and some exporters even refused to deal directly with Japan as their experience has been unsatisfactory. This reputation was due to the fact that some firms want to "get rich quick and grasp the shadow instead of the substance." He had discovered, he said, while visiting Japanese factories, that very often exporters receive large orders than they can handle. The orders are then distributed among several small factories with the result that products of different grades, shapes and finish are shipped. Japanese exporters should establish a thorough system of inspection and have one standard for export."

Mr. Browne said he thought the Germans had cured such a vast trade was the fact that they had applied science to production. Now Japan has her great opportunity and if she takes advantage of it and lives up to a higher standard of commerce and industry she would not only be able to obtain but to keep an important part of Australian trade and that of the Southern Hemisphere. Of course, Great Britain and the United States would be competitors in the southern markets but Japan would be sure to get her share if she convinced the buyers that she will oppose inferior goods and indifferent shipments."

Our New Price Announcement

Do you know that we have placed brand new prices on the famous CHEVROLET valve-in-the-head motor cars? Well, we have—we announced it last week. We have shaved the figures right down to the limit.

Yes, our doubled and redoubled production has a lot to do with it, but the main reason is this—we realize that all along the line manufacturer, distributor and dealer must work on a much narrower margin to give CHEVROLET owners dollar for dollar worth in a car that will not shrink in value from season to season. That is the real "why" of it.

ROYAL MAIL, $720

These cars have not been out a single hairline in quality. The Baby Grand formerly sold for $985 and the Royal Mail for $860. Come in and see what real motor car worth you get at the new figures.

The underlying causes of the war; the tangled secret diplomacy that, instead of averting the conflict, compelled it; the character of the rulers and political leaders who dominate the embattled peoples; the nature and power of the states engaged; the size and characteristics of the warring armies and navies; the financial cataclysm caused by the outbreak of hostilities and the methods taken to lessen and to end it; are all subjects fully and fearlessly discussed in this unique history.

THRILLING
UNBIASED

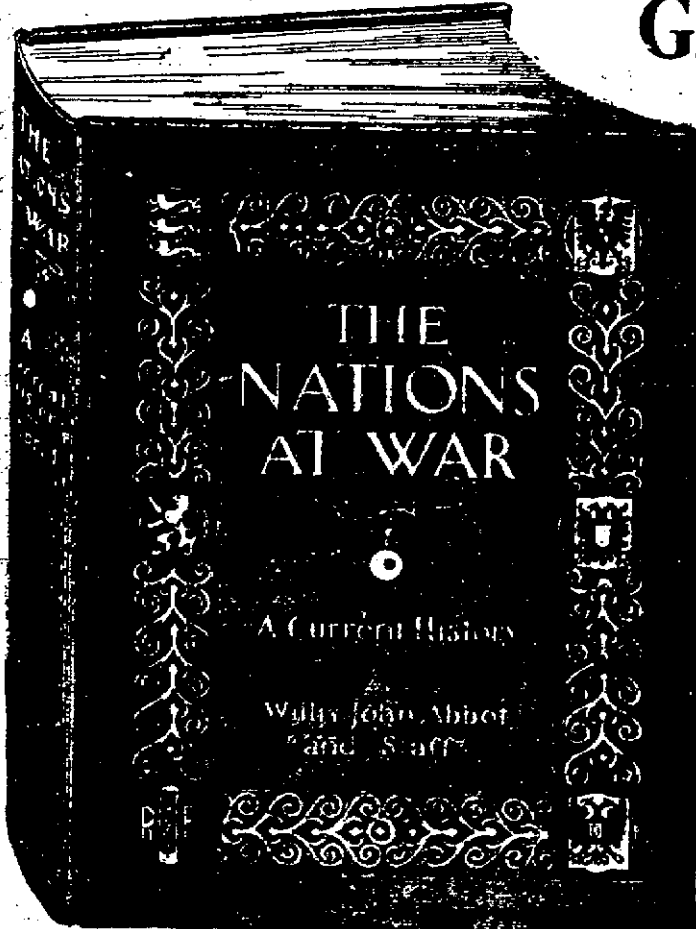

The running narrative of the war itself, the account of the military and naval operations by which the fighting nations of Europe undertake to balance their long accounts, are told with accuracy and impartiality, and in the lucid and entertaining style which the author, Willis J. Abbot, has shown in his other successful historical writings.

Colored
Illustrations

The illustrations, both in color and in half-tone, are from photographs gathered from battlefields, besieged cities, ravaged provinces, blockaded ports, menaced forts and armed troops. They exceed in number in beauty and graphic portrayal of actual war scenes any collection of pictures ever gathered for such a work. The book contains magnificent color plates produced by the latest and most expensive processes—veritable works of art.

The announcement in these columns that this paper would present to its readers "THE NATIONS AT WAR," by Willis J. Abbot, has brought to our office a host of people eager to see this sumptuously illustrated history of the first six months of the mighty European conflict. ATHLETIC TRY-OUTS WILL BE HELD FOR FAIR TROUPE

New York, June 15.—The announcement of the dates for the eastern and middle west tryouts for the teams that will compete at the track and field championships at the Panama-Pacific Exposition are gratifying to local amateur athletes. For some time clubs who are anxious to enter men for the senior and junior events at the Exposition have been kept in an unsettled state owing to the tardiness of the A. A. U. officials in arranging the tryouts. With the dates finally settled the outlook is much brighter.

The eastern tryouts will be held in Cambridge, Mass., on June 28 and the middle west tryouts will be staged in Chicago, July 17. The winners of these tryouts will be allowed a certain sum towards their expenses to the coast championship events. Harvard stadium has been selected as the place for the eastern tryouts and A. A. U. officials in Boston, who have the matter in charge, have already begun to make preparations for the athletes. The entry blanks will be distributed soon and a great representation of track and field men is expected to enter the preliminary games.

Bidwell pitched a good game for the winning team showing the losing team a stellar exhibition of twirling. The Crescents have the following line-up: Cutts, Bidwell, Gregory, Hahn, Fellows, Griffen and Condon; Harmony: Walman and Condon, battery; Walman, Scott, Brown, Van Hise and Jurl.

Hanover Loses.
The Willowdale baseball team defeated the Hanover team Sunday in a one-sided contest at Hutton's diamond by the score of 22 to 7. Batteries for Hanover, Smith and Ross; for Willowdale, Tracey and Kettlehorn.

WHY J. CANTILLON IS CALLED PONGO

Do you know why they called Joe Cantillon Pongo? Well, here's how it happened: Back in 1889, when he went to the coast, Cantillon found out there a newspaper man, Charlie Dryden, now of Chicago, a friend of Mississippi steamboat days. Cantillon made his debut in the coast town wearing a dark mustache and a coat of tan besides his uniform. He found many Italians among the fans, and they came out and rooted, taking him to be one of their nationality. An argument started among them and they took it to Dryden's newspaper for settlement. Night away Dryden said he was an Italian. He proved his point by giving Cantillon's right name as Pongo Foppino, and told how he learned to play ball on the lots of New York. The name Pongo stuck and the best part of it is "Pongo" learned to play the game on the Bunker hill diamond in Janesville.

SOX WHIP WASHINGTON WITH FOURNIER'S BATTING

Washington, D. C., June 14.—The White Sox celebrated last day yesterday by defeating the Washington Americans by the score of 8 to 2. Jacques Fournier, with his clouting, Eddie Collins and Cicotte shared in the victory, being the principal performers during the matinee. Fournier walked up to bat five times and finished with a percentage of a clean thousand, making two singles, a safe bunt, a double and a sacrifice fly, and above all his holding at first was faultless.

Eddie Collins never played a better game than yesterday. He got away with eight assists and one put out without a mishap. Cicotte was complete master of the Senators, and after five runs had been pushed across by the Sox in the first three innings, the knuckle ball king took things easy. Jim Shaw started for the home club but would not do. Gallia was not much better, and then Hooper took up the club duties and allowed but one run.

MORRIS MILLER

Hans Wagner continues to play high-grade ball, though he is well over the forty-year mark. A greater player than Wagner has proved himself to be through his entire career has never been identified with the game. Though by no means a youngster, he is still filling shortfield for the Pirates and not only doing it well, but he is hitting very timely and hard in all games, and he has not missed one to date. Players of the Wagner type are few in baseball. For though he has played long enough to warrant his losing interest in his work, he is still aggressive and full of life and likes to win as well as he ever did.

Great as Larry Lajoie has been, he was never in the same class with Wagner, for the very good reason that he was never as versatile a player as the Flying Dutchman, who not only could hit and field, but run bases as well as anyone. What is more, there is a great difference in the spirit of the two veterans. There has always been something phlegmatic or even listless about Lajoie. He was an artist because he was a more graceful player than Wagner, but so far as effectiveness of play and help to the team is concerned there was never any comparison.

There appears to be a new heavyweight in the game who will need watching. Jim Coffey, recent victor over Jim Flynn, has made a very favorable impression, and has convinced his critics that he is game to the core. In his fight with Flynn, Coffey broke bones in both of his hands, yet never stopped or winced, and continued to pound Flynn to a finish. Coffey is a tough customer and an effort already is being made to get him in line to fight Willard for the championship, when the present holder finds it necessary to defend his title. Coffey is to be given

IT LOOKS BAD FOR CARDINAL HURLER

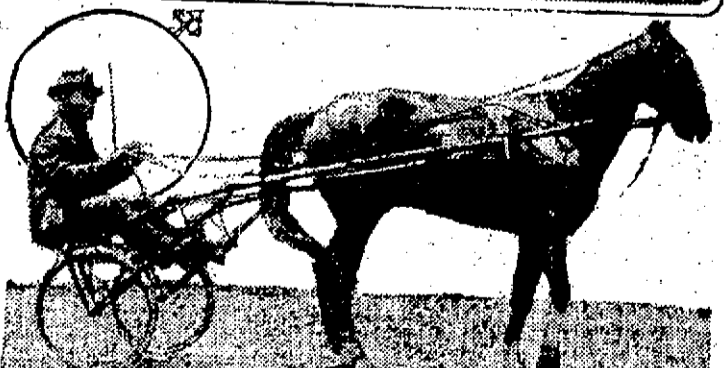

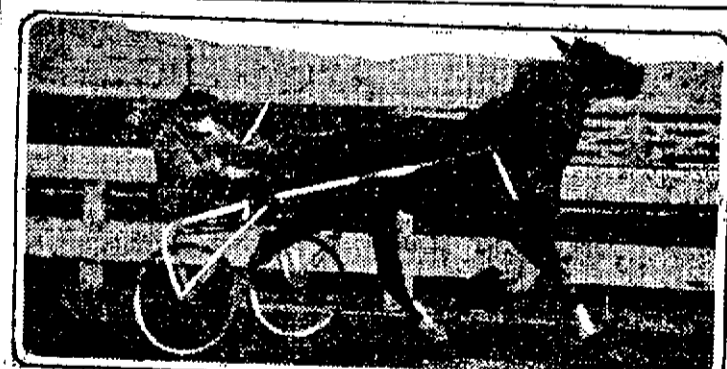

Hub Perdue.

It looks bad for Hub Perdue, the gallant squaw. He went against the Giants a week or two ago and they soaked him for nineteen hits. Manager Huggins declining to deride Hub, and forcing him to stay in there and get it all. Perdue said he wasn't fully conditioned and that he'd surely mow 'em down next time out—so he undertook to mow the Reds the other day, and they mowed him, good and proper. Hub says he isn't down for the count yet.

A lot of work between now and then, and it is figured that by the time Willard gets ready for him he will enter the ring with a good chance of coming out with the championship.

Miss Olga Dorfner of the Philadelphia Turngemeinde may go to the swimming races at the Panama-Pacific exposition. She is only seventeen years old and yet she has official records that entitle her to serious consideration. She has covered 100 yards in 1 minute 14 2-5 seconds, the 440 in 7 minutes, 57 seconds, and 880 yards in 17 minutes, 12 seconds, all in open still water.

Top to bottom: Rags, Will Darfee up; McCloskey, McDonald driver; White Sox.

Bill Donovan, manager of the New York Yankees, will appear frequently in the lineup of the Gotham club this season. Bill intends to pitch regularly. His success during his reappearance as a slabster recently at Detroit has furnished the Kiltie boss with a new idea. New York players say that Donovan has worked out every morning and spent considerable time pitching to batters in practice. The veterans say Bill shows more stuff in their batting practice than most twirlers they face in the afternoons.

Members of the Cornell and Harvard variety crews this year may make a trip clear across the country to compete in races on Lake Washington near Seattle this summer. If they make the trip, the crews may also take part in an intercollegiate regatta at San Francisco. Alumni of Cornell and Yale are working with Shriners to bring the crews west. The Shriners hold a convention in Seattle the first week in July, when it is planned to have the crews engage in competition with western college eight.

Training tables for big league ball players is seen in the near future by President Timme of the Milwaukee Brewers. "Track and football men have training tables, so why not baseball players?" says Timme.

A MONUMENTAL
A reward for merit—the way men are taking to the Real Tobacco Chew, and telling the good word to friends.

A little chew of pure, rich, mellow tobacco—seasoned and sweetened just enough—cuts out so much of the grinding and spitting.

THE REAL TOBACCO CHEW IS NOW CUT TWO WAYS!!
W-B CUT IS LONG SHRED. RIGHT-CUT IS SHORT SHRED.

Take less than one-quarter the old size chew. It will be more satisfying than a mouthful of ordinary tobacco. Just take a nibble of it until you find the evenly chew that suits you, then see how easily and how much less you have to spit, how few chews you take to be tobacco satisfied. That's why it is The Real Tobacco Chew. That's why it costs less in the end. The taste of pure, rich tobacco does not need to be covered up. An excess of licorice and sweetening makes you spit too much.

"Notice how the salt brings out the rich tobacco taste."

CIVIC LEAGUE HOLDS MEETING ON MONDAY

SEVERAL IMPORTANT BUSINESS MATTERS DISCUSSED AT LAST SESSION UNTIL FALL.

JUNIOR LEAGUE REPORT

Finances of Fly-Swallow Campaign Are Detailed by Miss Agnes Weber.—Parlase Talks on Chautauqua.

(By Mrs. Abbie Helms.) A postponed meeting of the Civic League was held at the city hall on Monday evening, June 14. Mrs. Percy Munger presiding. The routine business was transacted, the chairman reading a report of the finances concerning the rest rooms at the hitch barns. It was voted to have a general oversight of them during the summer and see that they were taken care of.

Rev. George Edwin Parlase presented the question of the Chautauqua to the attention of the ladies, asking that it receive their interest and support. He showed that the list of officers on the program was exceptionally good and spoke especially of the junior branch which would be held at the grounds every forenoon during the season. This is to be in charge of a playground expert and delightful lessons in movement exercises, folk dancing and other pleasant diversions for the children may be expected. Mr. Parlase suggested that the question of selling tickets for the Chautauqua be taken up by the league, as he was quite sure that with a very little effort they might be able to make some money with the proposition. The twenty tickets already pledged by the league, were taken in charge by Mrs. Ada Curran, who generously offered to send them to the theatre.

Programs of the events of the Chautauqua were also distributed by Mr. Parlase, who said that the outlook was bright for a large and enthusiastic attendance at the meetings.

Mrs. A. F. Hall, as chairman of the committee on the Y. W. C. A. building, gave a report of the work being done in that direction. She said that a meeting of the committee would be held in a few days and the work mapped out and systemized. A report of the work of the Junior League was then given by Miss Agnes Weber as follows:

Junior Civic League, June 1915. On account of the extreme warm weather, the fly campaign was officially started on March 15. A member of the Junior League was stationed in the children's room at the public library on every Saturday morning from 11 a. m. until 12 o'clock to buy the flies at ten cents per hundred. The flies and vegetable seeds were packed in penny packages by members of the committee and distributed to the school children, beginning on the week of April 18. On April 19 Prof. J. L. Gillen of the university extension division delivered a lecture to the school children on gardening and fly-swallowing. Many of the children of the Apollo theatre kindly donated the use of the theatre event. The expenditures and disbursements of the Junior League to date are as follows:

Total number of flies, 71,900. Flies were bought at ten cents per hundred up to May 15, inclusive, from then on to June 1st at five cents per hundred. Fifty-three children participated in the campaign.

Seed Report. Six varieties of licor and six of vegetable seeds were packed by the committee and distributed to the school children at a penny a packet, 2,109 being sold as follows: Carrots, 57c; beans, 60c; beets, 57c; onions, 72c; radishes, $1.62; lettuce, $1.28; nasturtium, $4.10; larkspur, $1.28; pinks, $3.32; candytuft, $2.05; marigold, $2.15; mignonette, $1.95; total, $21.09.

Sale of seeds, amount $21.09. Profit $10.94. This committee suggests to its successors that work be started in the fall as to its funds. This report is respectfully submitted by the committee of 1914-1915. Miss Agnes M. Weber, chairman; Mrs. Francis Grant, Mrs. Ada Curran, Miss Louise Merrill, Miss Mary Mount, Miss Katherine Burke, Miss Edith Soverhill.

After action was taken on this report a vote of thanks was given the committee of the Junior League for their faithful work. Also thanks were extended to Mr. Dedrick for the storage of certain material, owned by the league. As the last event of the evening, Mrs. Helms was asked to give an account of the rest room project and explain the latest developments in the movement. The league then voted to increase the plan, and the chair appointed the following rest room committee: Mrs. J. R. Nichols, Mrs. Matilda Bailey, Mrs. McManus. Adjournment was then taken until September.

JANESVILLE MAN SEEKS OFFICE AT VETERANS' MEETING

Carl A. Buchholz is Candidate for Department Commander at Marinette Convention.

Among others who will assemble at the Wisconsin United Spanish War Veterans' convention, to be held June 17, 18 and 19, there will be a small delegation from Janesville. Carl A. Buchholz will represent Janesville in the campaign for office and he seeks the highest position in the organization, that of Department Commander, now held by R. C. Burchard of Fort Atkinson.

Representatives from forty different cities will be on hand to help celebrate the sixteenth annual gathering with headquarters at the Marinette Hotel. The program will include the registering and reception of the members, banquets, dances, street parades, auto rides, trolley rides and business meetings.

Mr. Buchholz, who is now Senior Vice Department Commander, and chairman of the legislative committee, together with Commander Burchard, has shown more activity in trying to bring the G. A. R. and United Spanish War Veterans in a closer bond of comradeship than has been done before, and many good measures affecting the welfare of the order have been put forth through his activity. The usual custom is to move the officers up to the next highest position, and it is thought that this tradition will be followed in the coming election.

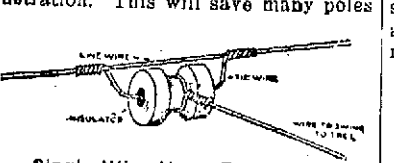

Many are already looking forward to the convention of next year, and it is a well known fact that both Racine and Ashland are eager for the meeting to be held in their city. Both of these places send a large delegation to the convention.

Those who will attend from Janesville are: J. M. Dixon, C. H. Cox, H. M. Ellis, H. Cramer, C. L. Hanson, C. A. Buchholz, H. G. Jaekle, Alfred P. Albert, Albert Knack, Albert Hill and D. Everman. Some of the Janesville delegates expect to be accompanied by their wives, and all anticipate an enjoyable meeting.

HANGING WIRE FROM A TREE

Excellent Method for Stringing Single Telephone Strand Through Woods and Swamps.

Should it be necessary to run a single telephone wire through woods and swamps, swing the line to trees with the hanger as shown in the illustration. This will save many poles.

Single Wire Hung From Tree.

From being placed where possibly it would be hard to keep them standing, especially in swamps, says Telephony. Be careful to so run the wire that branches and leaves cannot even touch it when they swing in the wind.

Feat of Electric Motor.

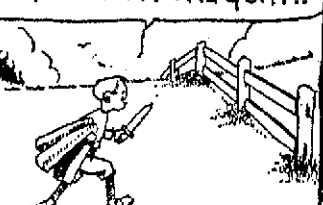

A remarkable performance of an electric motor is noted in a recent issue of an electrical paper. The motor was doing service in a mine geared to a pump, and because of the high temperature prevailing at the spot the motor was not enclosed, as they often are. During last winter the mine was flooded, submerging the pump and the motor to a depth of two feet. As it was necessary to continue the operation of the pump the motor was not shut down, and for two hours it ran without interruption, though completely submerged, until it had actually pumped itself clear of water. The motor suffered no damage and was stopped only long enough to clean off the dirt and chips around the motor, after which the bearings were oiled, and it was started again. Since then it has been running steadily for an average of 20 hours a day.

Some Drawback. "Opportunities," said Uncle Eben, "is as thick as mushrooms. Do only trouble is dat some of 'em is toad stools."

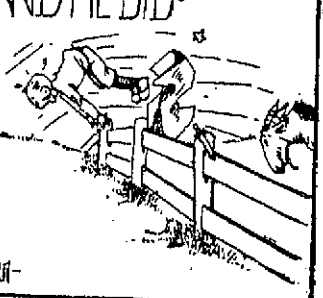

Two Kinks of Religion—Both Bad.

"Dar's de man dat takes his religion in spasms, and gits over it 'bout as quick," stated good old Parson Bagster. "And den ag'in, dar's de yudder kind dat has it all de time, and 'magine his whole duty is done when he says 'Amen!' in a deep voice. And I dunnuh, sah, which of 'em gives me de least satisfaction."—Kansas City Star.

PHOTOPLAY MAKES STRONG IMPRESSION

William Elliott Wins New Laurels "When We Were Twenty-One." Nat Goodwin's former starring vehicle, "When We Were Twenty-One," was the Paramount offering at the Apollo yesterday, featuring William Elliott. This pictureization of a noted play was appreciated by large audiences at all performances.

Throughout the entire production, the action is charged with true human feeling, and at times the dramatic situations are very intense.

An exceptionally chosen cast supports the star with commendable and uniform skill.

Among whom are Charles Waldron, who ably interprets the role of the generous self-sacrificing bachelor, Dick Carew, a characterization in which comedy and pathos is delicately mingled; his interpretation are artistic and beyond that infinitely human. Helen Luttrell as Phyllis finds ample opportunity for the display of her graceful accomplishments. William Elliott, himself, as young Richard Audaine, is true to the freshness and immaturity of the role. He discloses clearly the frankness and clean-heartedness of one who, though engaged in sowing his wild oats, is still a gentleman. Marie Express as the notorious "Firefly," who temporarily lures Audaine from the path of rectitude, is an alluring adventuress.

"When We Were Twenty-One," is human to the core, wholesome and truly enjoyable from beginning to end.
